

The Lord of the Rings Roleplaying

Combat Actions (5E) - Player-hero reference

Attack

Make an attack with a melee weapon, ranged weapon, improvised weapon, or unarmed. Some calling features allow Extra Attack.

Use a Craft

Use a Craft or calling feature that takes an action. Middle-earth has no spell slots - subtle Crafts replace overt spellcasting.

Dash

Double your speed for this turn. The increase equals your speed after applying modifiers.

Disengage

Your movement does not provoke opportunity attacks for the rest of your turn.

Dodge

Attackers you can see have disadvantage against you, and you have advantage on Dexterity saves. Ends if you are incapacitated or your speed is 0.

Help

Within 5 feet, give a creature advantage on its next ability check, or give an ally advantage on its first attack against a target within 5 feet of you.

Hide

Make a Dexterity (Stealth) check to hide, following the usual rules for hiding.

Ready

Choose a perceivable trigger and an action (or move up to your speed). When it occurs, use your reaction. Readying a concentrating Craft requires concentration.

Search

Devote your attention to finding something. The Loremaster may call for Perception, Investigation, Explore, Hunting, or another skill.

Use an Object

Use an object that needs your action - including magical items, Rewards on your gear, or interacting with more than one object.

Improvise

Attempt anything fitting a tale of Middle-earth. The Loremaster decides if it is possible and what roll, if any, is required.

Middle-earth reminders

Shadow: Miserable (Shadow $\geq$ half Wisdom) - auto-fail on a natural 1-2. Anguished (Shadow $\geq$ Wisdom) - disadvantage on checks, attacks, and saves. | Fellowship: Spend points to aid the Company (often advantage). | Optional: 3 Success Dice (d6) may replace a d20.

[cut here]

The Lord of the Rings Roleplaying

Bonus Actions & Reactions (5E) - Player-hero reference

BONUS ACTIONS

Bonus Action (Rule)

You get a bonus action only if a calling feature, Craft, Virtue, or other rule grants one. One bonus action per turn - choose if you have several options.

Two-Weapon Fighting

After the Attack action with a light melee weapon in one hand, attack with a different light melee weapon in the other. Do not add your ability modifier to the bonus damage (unless negative).

Use a Craft

Use a Craft whose timing is a bonus action. No spell slots in Middle-earth - check your calling for which Crafts (if any) use a bonus action.

Calling or Virtue

Many calling features and Virtues use a bonus action (commands, quick strikes, cunning movement, and the like). Check your sheet for timing.

Improvise

Rarely, the Loremaster may allow a quick secondary deed as a bonus action. Only if a rule or ruling grants it - you cannot invent one freely.

REACTIONS

Reaction (Rule)

One reaction per round. It can trigger on your turn or another's. After you use it, you regain it at the start of your next turn.

Opportunity Attack

When a hostile creature you can see leaves your reach, use your reaction for one melee attack against it, resolved before it leaves. Disengage prevents this.

Readied Action

If you took the Ready action, spend your reaction when the trigger occurs to take the chosen action or move up to your speed. You may ignore the trigger.

Calling or Virtue

Some calling features and Virtues trigger as reactions (parries, warnings, protective deeds). Use only when their listed trigger occurs.

Use a Craft

Use a Craft whose timing is a reaction, when its trigger occurs. Middle-earth has no Shield or Counterspell - Crafts are subtle and calling-specific.

Improvise

The Loremaster may allow an instant response as a reaction. Only with a clear trigger and a ruling - not a free second action.

Action economy reminders

Turn economy: Move + Action + (optional) Bonus Action. One Reaction per round. | Free object interaction: draw a weapon, open a door, or similar once on your turn without spending an action. | You cannot trade an action for a bonus action (or vice versa).